

Review Course Textbooks Online

- 1 Students should use Banner Web and go to the “Registration” screen
There they should notice the last link, “Textbook ISBN Search” & the following message: “A textbook’s ISBN identifies that book and is needed when comparing prices. Always add any shipping charges and any other fees when considering a book’s price.”
- 2 That link redirects the user to a screen to select and view classes
- 3 The third column in a course schedule is new, “Books,” and the user may select the “View Books” option for any course
- 4 “View Books” takes the student to the book store’s site for that course, and there students may review the text information for that particular course
- 5

The point of all of this is to give students options when shopping for books.

Some notes: Book vouchers are only good at the Book End (the campus book store). Students should notice that they cannot back out to Banner Web from the book store’s text information page (they could find a link under the “History” tab of their browser, but most won’t do that--not sure if it makes sense to give this option...maybe...). Current versions of web browsers should display the text information pages properly; older versions may indicate that the page cannot be found (so, update your browser!).
